CORPORATION ENCOURAGES VOLUNTEERISM

The H.B. Fuller Company was created in 1887 to manufacture adhesives for wallpaper. Today, the company employs over 3,000 people worldwide providing adhesives, sealants, paints and other specialty chemicals. One of its subsidiaries is TEC with plants in several states including one in Gainesville, Florida. TEC manufactures grout and mortar for ceramic tile which the Gainesville facility ships to distributors in various states in the eastern U.S.

Employees from TEC, Gainesville at Mill Creek Farm

This year, corporate management encouraged employees to participate in 'Make a Difference' week, designed to promote volunteering in local communities on company time. Employees of each plant met to decide what kind of project they would like to take on. Some chose to visit homeless shelters while others planted trees. The Gainesville employees decided to give a hand at Mill Creek Farm. So one Monday morning in October, every one of the employees came out to clean water troughs, trim trees, fix broken fences, rake and weed-eat. Everyone had an enjoyable time. We hope they will return next year.

OUR HORSES LIKE SOUTHERN LIVING

Southern Living Magazine brings to its readers the best of everything about the south – from beaches, restaurants, house designs, recipes, cooking and gardens. Now the magazine has discovered our horses.

In the November 2009 Florida edition of the magazine, there is an article with the headline "Retire to Florida at age 20? Horses do." So get the magazine – there's a great article with stunning pictures of the Everglades – Thanksgiving menu – and the horses at Mill Creek Farm. But make sure it's the Florida edition.

OUR LATEST ARRIVAL

Stormy, 25 year old appendix mare shown here being seized by the Baker County Animal Control after being found living in deplorable conditions. Her starving companion mare was beyond help. Stormy was bought to Mill Creek Farm where she is now enjoying living like a horse.
